Art Intake for November Show

TEAA will open a new show in October featuring paintings and other art forms by Phyllis Taylor. There will be a reception for the artists on October 5, during the Gearhart Art Walk, 2-5 pm. This show will be open Fridays-Sundays, 11 am-3 pm from Oct. 5 to Nov. 1.

Taylor's focus is Art and Music: My Yin and Yang. Art is her solitary activity whereas being a part of music groups feeds her social needs. Since her primary instrument is the cello, she has featured it along with depicting cellists and other musicians. "I was told by so many people that I had to choose: 'Either be an artist or be a musician. You can't be both.' Why not?"

Her full-time job as a graphic designer/illustrator and she did little fun art for decades, but played cello continuously. Have a bad day?

Notes from the Prez...

Fall is definitely in the air. Our daylight hours are quickly shortening and our days are moving a little slower. The hectic pace of summer is again behind us.

If you're feeling like you have a little more time on your hands maybe you've registered for one of the upcoming workshops. Both of them will be great learning opportunities. Do keep an eye on our website for additional workshops to come.

I also see that many of you are going to be a part of the Attic Art Sale fundraiser to be held next month on Saturday, October 26. If you've not reserved a table, you should plan on coming by to shop. It will be a stellar chance to purchase original artwork from several of our very talented artists. You'll see me there!

Lastly, many thanks to our hardworking and dedicated Gallery Managers, MaryAnn Gantenbein, Main Gallery, and Mary Schlunegger, Entry Gallery. They have recently been of invaluable help in updating some of the procedures for showing art in the two gallery's. Once your Board has approved the new information it will be available to you and on our website. Stayed tuned for more.

As we move towards more indoor days for the next few months I hope to see more of all of you at our events and hopefully using our great studio for your own art projects.

Playing cello is a perfect outlet for stress. Her primary art mediums are watercolor, acrylics, and sketching.

With the music theme, Taylor is including the Duo Fiskare from Astoria High School: Audrey Cereghino, violin and Dylan Morrow, cello, providing live music at this ArtWalk as part of their senior project.
